Smokefree States

California (1998)

California was the first state to go smokefree by prohibiting smoking in all public places and workplaces including bars and restaurants.

Legislative

The state law was passed by the legislature after many local communities throughout California had already gone smokefree. The bill passed in 1994 went into effect in “steps” with the workplaces and restaurants provisions going into effect in 1995 and bars in 1998.

[Effective Dates: W/R – 1/1/95; B – 1/1/98] CA Labor Code §6404.5

Delaware (2002)

In 2002, Delaware was the second state to go smokefree by prohibiting smoking in all public places and workplaces including casinos, bars and restaurants. The bill also repealed the preemption clause in existing legislation, though Delaware being such a small state it was more of a symbolic change.

Legislative

Advocates had been pushing for a statewide bill for many years and had been close to passing a bill in 2001 but the bill was pulled because of the fears it may be weakened. Advocates looked toward 2002 and ran a grassroots education campaign. In 2002, with strong sponsor support, the bill was passed out of the House and Senate and signed by the governor. The governor came on board late in the campaign but still made a big difference.

[Effective Date: W/R/B – 11/27/02] DE Statutes, Title 16, Chapter 29, §2901 et seq. (2002)

Maine (2003)

Maine has separate laws governing smoking in public places and smoking in private workplaces. The public places laws prohibited smoking in restaurants in 1999 and in bars and taverns in 2003. The private workplace law prohibits smoking in most workplaces, but allows for designated smoking rooms subject to certain requirements.

Legislative

Smokefree air ordinances were passed in many towns and communities, including in Maine’s largest city Portland, throughout the 1990s. In 1999, Maine strengthened its public places law to prohibit smoking in restaurants. In 2003, advocates closed the remaining loophole by banning smoking in bars and taverns. The private workplace law was originally passed in 1988 and was recently strengthened to prohibit smoking in most places in 2005.

[Effective Dates: W – 1/1/86; R/B – 1/1/04] 22 ME Rev. Statutes §1541 et seq. (1999, 2003)

New York (2003)

New York's smokefree air law prohibits smoking in almost all public places and workplaces including restaurants and bars (excluding cigar bars).

Legislative

The passage of the New York State law came on the heels of the successful implementation of the New York City smokefree air law as well as smokefree air laws in many counties throughout the state.

[Effective Date: W/R/B – 7/24/03] NY Public Health Code, art. 13-E, §1399-N et seq. (2003)

Connecticut (2004)

Connecticut's smokefree air law prohibits smoking in almost all public places, workplaces, restaurants and bars. There are exemptions for private workplaces with fewer than five employees and the law allows for designated smoking rooms for private workplaces with over five employees. The law preempts local communities from passing stronger smokefree air ordinances.

Legislative

Advocates in Connecticut worked for years to repeal the state's preemption law. In 2003 advocates supported a statewide smokefree air law that would strengthen the current law but would not strike out the preemptive language. The law was passed in 2003 with workplaces and restaurants going smokefree in October 2003 and bars in April 2004.

[Effective Dates: W/R – 10/1/03; B – 4/1/04] CT Code §19a-342 (2003)

Massachusetts (2004)

Massachusetts' smokefree air law prohibits smoking in all public places, workplaces, restaurants and bars (excluding cigar bars).

Legislative

The state law came after a decade or more of smokefree air ordinances passed at the local level including in the capital of Massachusetts, Boston.

[Effective Date: 7/5/04] MA General Laws, Chapter 270, §22. (2004)

Rhode Island (2005)

Rhode Island's law bans smoking in almost all public places and workplaces including restaurants and bars. Restaurants went smokefree air March 2005 and bars went smokefree in May 2005. The law preempts local communities from passing a stronger smokefree air law until October 2006.

Legislative

In a 2004 legislative compromise, Rhode Island's smokefree air bill prohibited smoking in public places and workplaces in March 2005 and exempted bars until October 2006. However in early 2005, the legislature closed the loophole on bars which went smokefree in May 2005. The compromise also included preemption until October 2006.

[Effective Dates: W/R – 3/1/05; B – 5/4/05] RI General Laws, Title 23, Chapter 20.10 (2004)

Vermont (2005)

Vermont strengthened its public places smokefree air law in 2005 by closing a loophole that allowed smoking in bars. The private workplaces smokefree air law allows smoking in separately designated areas.

Legislative

Vermont passed one of the strongest smokefree air laws in the country in 1993. The law prohibited smoking in most public places and restaurants. In 2005, after a long fight, the bar loophole was closed and bars went smokefree in September 2005. The private workplace smokefree air law was passed in 1997 and has remained virtually unchanged.

[Effective Dates: W – 7/1/88; R/B – 9/1/05] VT Statutes Title 18, Chapter 37 (1993, 2005)

Washington (2005)

Washington has arguably the strongest smokefree air law in the country. Washington's law prohibits smoking in almost all public places (including within 25 feet of the establishment), workplaces, including in all restaurants, bars, and non-tribal casinos. Washington state law preempts local smokefree air ordinances due to a court decision.

Ballot Initiative

Efforts by advocates to make Washington smokefree were unsuccessful at the statehouse for a number of years, despite strong bipartisan support in both houses. In 2005 the advocates decided to take the issue to voters. On November 8, 2005, Washington voters overwhelmingly approved, 63 percent to 37 percent, a ballot initiative that prohibits smoking in almost all public places and workplaces, including in all restaurants, bars, and non-tribal casinos. The new law went into effect in December 2005.

[Effective Dates: R – 7/28/85; W – 4/18/94] (Comprehensive state law passed by initiative 11/05 following court ruling pre-empting local ordinances.)

Overview List – How many Smokefree Laws?

Since the 1970s, the nonsmokers' rights movement has made significant progress towards clean indoor air. As of October 4, 2005, there are 2,057 municipalities with laws in effect that restrict where smoking is allowed. A state or local municipality can pass a Workplace*, Restaurant, or Bar law, or any combination of the three. We hope that the following concise statements are helpful.

As of October 4, 2005:

Local

- A total of 2,057 municipalities in the United States have local laws in effect that restrict where smoking is allowed.
- A total of 416 of these 2,057 municipalities have a 100% smokefree provision in effect at the local level – either in workplaces, and/or restaurants, and/or bars.
- There are 308 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires 100% smokefree workplaces.
- There are 262 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires 100% smokefree restaurants.
- There are 193 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires 100% smokefree bars.
- There are 155 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires both workplaces and restaurants be 100% smokefree.
- There are 190 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires both restaurants and bars be 100% smokefree.
- There are 115 municipalities with a local law in effect that requires workplaces, restaurants, and bars be 100% smokefree.

Note: Since some of the above have 100% smokefree coverage in more than one category, the numbers are not mutually exclusive.

State and Local

- Across the United States, 5,707 municipalities are covered by a 100% smokefree provision in workplaces, and/or restaurants, and/or bars, by either a state or local law, representing 37.2% of the US population.
- There are 33 states with local laws in effect that require 100% smokefree workplaces and/or restaurants and/or bars.
